Ⅵ 次の英文を読み、設問に答えなさい。

People enjoy making videos. People also (ア) of becoming famous. Now with video sharing websites like YouTube people are combining these two things. By posting your videos on a website, you can become more famous than you ever imagined. And it can happen instantly.

It used to take many years to become an international star. Musicians toured the country and played in small clubs. They almost had to beg people to become interested in their work. Musicians worked really hard. The same was true for actors. Actors moved to Hollywood where they found work in low budget movies. They took many small parts in (A)-made movies before anyone noticed them. For ordinary people, it was nearly impossible to appear on TV or in the newspaper. This completely changed with YouTube.

YouTube was created in 2005, and it quickly became the third most visited website. Anyone can (イ) a video on YouTube. It has more than 800 million users a month. It is available in 54 languages. Around 60 hours of new videos are added every minute. A video can be rapidly spread on other social media sites like Twitter or Facebook. This is called ⁽¹⁾“going viral.” People share a video on the Internet, and then they comment, blog, and tweet about the video until it seems everyone in the world knows it.

Susan Boyle became a celebrity this way. In 2009, she was an unknown singer from Scotland. She took part in a talent show. Someone put a video of her performance on YouTube. Millions of people watched it. Impressed by her beautiful voice, people shared her video with friends. Soon after her video went viral, she began recording and selling her songs. She (B) became an international singing star.

Videos of people without any special talents have also gone viral. In 2007 a father made a short video of a baby and his older brother. He named the video “Charlie bit my finger.” It soon became famous all over the world. The two boys now have their own blogs and video websites, and they often (ウ) on TV shows.

Not everyone is happy when their videos go viral. Instant fame can be hard to cope with. Susan Boyle became ill after receiving so much worldwide attention. Charlie and his brother say they feel ⁽²⁾(embarrass) when people stare at them on the street. People lose all sense of privacy when their videos go viral.

Privacy is not a problem for a dog or cat. These days more people are sharing videos of their pets. If their videos go viral, pet owners can enjoy a moment of fame. But these pet owners do not have to show themselves (C) to the public. The dogs and cats don’t care one way or another. So it is a good situation for everyone.

What is the next trend after singers, babies and cute animals? The answer is probably being uploaded right now. It just needs a little time to go viral.

A short story about Nagomi and Tama

Once upon a time, there was a dog bought at a pet shop in Yokohama when she was 3 weeks old. Her eyes and ears were so big and her body so small. On the same day a 3 month old black and white cat was bought, too. He had big round eyes and folded ears. He had been waiting for his new owner to appear for 2 months, and purred with happiness whenever he was held in people's arms.

Fate brought the two animals to the same new home. The dog was named Nagomi after two days of her arrival. The cat was named Tama on the very first day of his arrival. Tama was a big brother to Nagomi since he was older. She followed him everywhere and would cry if she lost him. When Tama jumped up on the bed, she became very sad because she was too small to jump on the bed. She would bite Tama when he would not play with her but even then, Tama would use his tail to play with her and would lick her hair when she was falling asleep.

It's been 12 years since Nagomi and Tama have come together and they are still good friends now. Many people think that cats and dogs do not get along well, but this case was different. Nagomi had been taken away from her mother, brothers and sisters at the age of 21 days. Tama was caged at a pet shop as a kitten and saw many puppies and kittens come and go, until he became a cat. Both of them must have been very lonely when they first met and found each other to be great partners. I'm hoping they live happily ever after together with me.

1. The puppy and cat came from the same pet shop.
2. The cat did not like to be held in people's arms.
3. The cat and dog were born on the same day.
4. Tama was young when he was taken to a new home.
5. Tama is a cat with pointed ears.
6. Nagomi likes Tama very much.
7. Nagomi lived with her mother for a long time.

8. Tama has a gentle kind character.
9. Nagomi and Tama are lonely forever.
10. The writer owns Nagomi and Tama.

Ⅵ 次の英文を読んで設問に答えなさい。

[A] shall I be when I grow up? This is the question that many children ask when they are young. But some people do not wait to grow up before they start their lives. There are some extraordinary young people who know what they want to do with their lives at a very young age. They start working on their skills long before they reach adulthood.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, the Austrian composer, was only three years old when he began playing musical instruments. By the age of five he was composing music and in 1778, at the age of seven, he gave his first public performance. He could play a piece of music after seeing it only once and was soon playing the piano in front of kings and queens. He went on to become one of the world's most famous and best-loved composers.

Pablo Picasso was born in Spain in 1881. His first word was 'pencil' and he began painting and drawing when he was just a small child. By the age of seven he was painting many different types of pictures. It was not easy at first to earn enough money to live from his work and as a young man his life was very [B]. He even had to burn some of his paintings in order to keep warm. But soon people began to enjoy his work and he later became one of greatest artists of the twentieth century. In 2010 one of his paintings was sold for $104 million.

Some people think Kim Ung-Yong is the cleverest person in the world. He is a Korean genius who was born in 1963. He learned ^①talk when he was six months old and by the age of three could read in at least four languages. He started university when he was four years old and took a PhD course at fifteen. He eventually went to work at NASA, the American space agency and is now working as a senior engineer.

Laura Dekker was told she was too young to sail round the world, but she did it anyway. In 2010, at the age of sixteen, the Dutch sailor became the youngest person to sail around the world on her own. She had spent most of her childhood at sea [C] owned her own boat when she was six years old. The government said she was too young to go alone but finally they allowed her to start her journey. She sailed around the world in fifteen months.

Justin Bieber was just twelve years old when he posted a video of himself singing on YouTube. A talent scout who was looking [D] new singers saw the film and soon after a record company offered him a deal to make his own records. This young Canadian is now loved by fans from many countries and sells millions of albums. He is one of the most successful musicians in the world.

Steven Spielberg made his first film when he was eight years old. He made many short adventure films ^②set in the areas around his home and he charged his friends 25 cents to see them. His sister sold popcorn. When he was just thirteen years old he won his first film prize. At sixteen he made his first full-length feature film for $500. He made a profit of just one dollar. The film that made him famous was called 'Jaws.' This is a story of a shark that terrified people who were living in a small American town. He went on to make many other famous films such as E.T., Jurassic Park and, more recently, Lincoln. He has been given three Academy Awards and some people think he is one of the greatest film directors of all time.

Yuto Miyazawa has been playing the guitar since he was three years old. This famous Japanese child, who was born in 2000, was only eight years old when the Guinness Book of Records named him the world's youngest professional guitarist. He has played in Madison Square Gardens in New York and also [E] his hero Ozzy Osborne.

Parents and teachers often tell children to wait and finish school before they start their lives. But these stories of extraordinary youth show that children and teenagers can do much more than people ever realized from a very early age.
